It's a myth that companies need to track you to make money.

DuckDuckGo has been free to use since day one, and private search ads have kept us profitable for nearly a decade. When you search for “car” we show you a car ad — it's that simple.

“The company best known for its search engine is launching a new set of tools aimed at creating an ‘easy button’ for protecting your data online.”

“Tackling email privacy has been a major goal for DuckDuckGo, as the company pushes for privacy-friendly methods for various online tasks.”

“It doesn’t allow targeted advertising, results are not based on your search history, and you’ll see fewer ads based on your search. It’s easy to use and install, too.”

“The 13-year-old company appears to be in a prime position to fulfill internet users’ increasing desire for privacy in an age of data leaks, breaches and scandals.”
